

Cool Finds

Pennsylvania Botany Symposium 2023

Open to all, not just symposium attendees! Have you found an unusual, exciting or otherwise noteworthy plant, stand, or community somewhere in the Keystone State? Something special you would like to share with your fellow Botany Symposium attendees at this year's event?

Submit one or more entries and fill out a copy of this form for each entry. Entries should be discoveries made within the last two years that haven't been shown in previous Botany Symposia. Each entry will consist of one or more high-resolution photos (preferably at the original size from the camera or phone) in any digital format and a copy of this form with all blanks filled in. If you run out of space on the form, give additional information in the email.

Deadline: Friday, October 6. Send entries to:

Roger Latham <rel@continentalconservation.us>

Entries will be juried by a panel of your peers. Criteria include uniqueness of the find and photo quality. Accepted submissions will be part of a 40-minute slide presentation during the symposium.

Submitter's name

Address

Email

Phone

Name of find (plant species or community)

Date of find

Vouchered by:

attached photo(s) OR

herbarium specimen—name of repository:

County where find was made

Approximate location

Bedrock formation, if known

Significance of find (Why is it unusual, exciting, or otherwise noteworthy?)

Are you providing any photo(s) taken of a different specimen of the same species, rather than of your actual find? yes no

If yes, please verify that you obtained permission to use each image from its owner or that it has public domain status.